EXPERT OPINION

A second medical opinion from internationally renowned doctors

BUPA GIVES YOU THE CONFIDENCE OF HAVING AN EXPERT OPINION WHEN FACED WITH A SERIOUS ILLNESS.

HOW DOES EXPERT OPINION HELP?

The specialists selected to review each case are specifically assigned based on their expertise with respect to each Bupa member's condition. Following are some examples of how second medical opinion services have helped patients make informed decisions about treatment.

Colon Cancer*

A patient diagnosed with colon cancer with liver metastases had been treated with surgery and chemotherapy. Two international oncology and digestive tract specialists were consulted, the first from Boston (USA), and the second from Paris (France). After reviewing the case, both experts suggested the patient receive a new, recently discovered treatment that had yielded higher survival rates for this type of tumor. The patient's treating physician was receptive to the information and administered the new treatment to the patient, achieving optimum results.

Chronic Lumbosciatalgia*

A 46 year-old female patient was suffering from lumbago complicated by sciatica. She had already had two operations, and the neurosurgeon was advising her to undergo a third. The patient decided to ask for a second opinion before agreeing to the third operation. Two international orthopedic experts were consulted, one of them resident in California (USA), and the other in Paris (France). After reviewing the case, both experts concluded that the patient should not go ahead with the operation. Instead, both recommended that she lose weight and engage in exercise under the supervision of a physiotherapist and that she take specific medication when in pain. By taking these measures, the patient was able to go back to work and resume her daily life with no restrictions.

This value-added service is subject to minimum criteria requirements established solely by Bupa, at the time the second medical opinion is requested by the member, on a case-by-case basis. The Expert Opinion Case Report is intended to provide you with information to supplement the information you have already received from your treating physician(s). The physician rendering the Case Report will not have the benefit of examining you in person, the ability to order additional tests, or any information beyond what you provide. Neither Bupa nor independent medical experts can take personal responsibility for the management of your care based only on the information we receive. You should discuss the final report with your own doctors, who are responsible for your care.
